21 Killed in Iraq Bus Attack

Masked gunmen execute Shiite students but spare Sunnis

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Masked gunmen stopped two minivans carrying students north of Baghdad Sunday, ordered the passengers off, separated Shiites from Sunni Arabs, and killed the 21 Shiites "in the name of Islam," a witness said.

In predominantly Shiite southern Basra, police hunting for militants stormed a Sunni Arab mosque early Sunday, just hours after a car bombing. The ensuing fire fight killed nine.

The two attacks dealt a blow to Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki's pledge to curb sectarian violence. He again failed to reach consensus Sunday among Iraq's ethnic and sectarian parties on candidates for interior and defense minister — posts he must fill to implement his ambitious plan to take control of Iraq's security from U.S.-led forces within 18 months.

In the minibus ambush, a car and an SUV stopped the vehicles near the town of Qara Tappah, about 75 miles northeast of Baghdad and near Diyala province, electrician Haqi Ismail, 48, told The Associated Press. About 15 masked men forced everyone out of the vehicles, he said.

He said the gunmen ordered the Shiites to lie down and before they opened fire one shouted, "On behalf of Islam, today we will dig a mass grave for you. You are traitors." (AP)

Hong Kong Marks Tiananmen Anniversary

IN MEMORY: Thousands of mourners hold candles aloft, creating a sea of lights in Hong Kong's Victoria Park Sunday in China's only known public event marking 17 years since Chinese troops crushed a pro-democracy protest at Beijing's Tiananmen Square, killing hundreds. Meanwhile, most of China didn't mark the occasion publicly because discussion of the crackdown is still taboo outside of the semiautonomous regions of Hong Kong and Macau.

FORGETFULNESS | Loo-sing Money This was definitely not your typical toilet paper. A tax collector in Graz, Austria, accidentally left $28,000 in cash in a black attache case he placed on top of a toilet in the men's room of a restaurant Thursday, police said. By the time he realized it was missing and went back, the cash was gone, authorities said. As of Friday, no one had turned up with the money, prompting police to issue an appeal for its return. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Proof These Weren't Designed by Nature

Like most dogs, Anita Tolentino's Shih Tzu got into his share of dirt. But that resulted in criminal charges against the Hillsborough, Calif., owner when the high-maintenance breed was found wandering the streets with its long hair so filthy that it couldn't move properly. "This is one breed that you need to groom," said Peninsula Humane Society investigator Debi DeNardi. (AP)

VISITATION BATTLES

Fine, Then He Won't Pay Pet Support

A Barcelona, Spain, court Thursday denied a man's request to make unannounced visits at his ex-wife's house to see a dog. When the couple divorced, she got to keep the dog, Yako, but agreed he could visit the animal if he gave advance notice. But he started showing up unannounced, and she stopped letting him in. "Visiting rights concerning an animal are unprecedented," the judge wrote. An arrangement among hostile ex-spouses for unannounced visits to the dog would be messy, he said. (AP)

DISCOUNTS

Fuel and Their Money Are Soon Parted

A Baltimore man who, police say, pretended to be a station attendant and "sold" gasoline to drivers for $10 a tank was stealing the expensive commodity and pocketing the purchase money. Joseph K. Boulware was arrested May 19 at a gas station where, police said, he dispensed 450 gallons of gas worth about $1,300. Authorities said Boulware used a magnetic key and a code that effectively places a pump on standby mode, allowing him to dispense gasoline unnoticed. Boulware had worked for gas testing companies. Rice: Offer to Iran Not Open-Ended

Secretary urges nuke deal 'in a matter of weeks'

WASHINGTON | Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice put Iran on notice Sunday that the incentives offered by the West to suspend its nuclear program are not open-ended, although she declined to say Tehran had a firm deadline to respond.

"I'm not one for timelines and specific schedules, but I think it's fair to say that we really do have to have this settled over a matter of weeks, not months," Rice said.

"No one among these six powers is prepared to let this simply drag out with Iran continuing to make progress on its nuclear program," she told

"Fox News Sunday." The six nations — the U.S., Great Britain, Germany, France, China and Russia — agreed Thursday to offer Iran new incentives if it would give up uranium enrichment. Rice would not give any details about the offer, which is to be hand delivered to the Iranians in the next few days by the European Union's foreign policy chief.

Rice said the proposal represented "a major opportunity" for Iran. "It's sort of a major crossroads for Iran and it's perhaps not surprising that they will need a little bit of time to look at it." NEDRA PICKLER (AP)

Guantanamo Hunger Strike Waning

GUANTANAMO BAY | The number of Guantanamo Bay detainees on hunger strike has dropped from 89 to 18, the U.S. military said Sunday.

The strike — which jumped from three participants in late May to 89 on Thursday — was the biggest of the year at the U.S. prison in Cuba, where about 460 men are being held on suspicion of links to terrorism.

The U.S. military has said the detainees were trying to pressure the United States to release them. A human rights attorney has described the strike as a desperate appeal for justice. (AP)

INDIANAPOLIS | A neighborhood mourned the deaths of seven family members Sunday, somewhat comforted by news that police believed they had arrested everyone responsible for the city's worst mass murder in at least 25 years.

Memorial held for Mich. student believed alive after accident

ADA, MICH. | After believing for more than a month that Laura VanRyn survived a van crash that killed five people, her friends and relatives were gathering Sunday to remember the young woman who was misidentified in a tragic mix-up.

VanRyn's family planned to exhume the 22-year-old college senior's body, which was buried April 30 under a tombstone with the name of her classmate, Whitney Cerak.

Members of VanRyn's church prayed for her and her family Sunday morning as the congregation prepared for a memorial service later in the day.

Cerak, who bore a resemblance to VanRyn, was in a coma until recently and suffered a swollen face and broken bones, cuts and bruises and brain injuries in the crash.

VanRyn's parents did not begin to question whether she was actually their daughter until, as she regained consciousness, she started saying things that did not make sense to them, including referring to VanRyn's father by a pet name he did not recognize.

Students Found Dead Inside Helium Balloon

No foul play suspected after bodies are found in advertising balloon

LUTZ, FLA. | Two college students were found dead inside a large, deflated helium balloon after apparently pulling it down and crawling inside it, officials said.

The deaths of Jason Ackerman and Sara Rydman, both 21, appear to be accidental, police said.

Their bodies were found

Saturday partially inside a deflated helium balloon at the entrance of a condominium complex a few miles north of Tampa. The 8-foot-diameter balloon was used to advertise the complex.

The county medical examiner said Sunday that the cause of death won't be released for six weeks, until toxicology results come back.

Inhaling helium can quickly lead to brain damage and death from lack of oxygen, according to the Compressed Gas Association. (AP)

ATLANTA | Women going through treatment for breast cancer felt better when they tried yoga, says the first scientific study on the topic.

The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center study focused on 61 women who had surgery for breast cancer and now were getting six weeks of radiation.

Participants who took yoga said they were in better general health and were less fatigued. The researchers found no difference in levels of depression or anxiety. (AP)

Militias Capture Key Town In Ongoing Power Struggle

Islamic militias captured a strategic town north of Mogadishu on Sunday, strengthening their grip on Somalia during some of the worst violence in this lawless Horn of Africa nation in nearly 15 years of anarchy, witnesses and local officials said. Parliament Set to Meet As Gang Violence Continues

Gangs burned buildings near the airport in East Timor's capital Sunday despite patrols by foreign peacekeepers, and residents pleaded for a permanent police presence in their neighborhoods to stop the violence. Prime Minister Mari Alkatiri said parliament will meet this week to address the worst wave of unrest since East Timor's independence from Indonesian rule in 1999. No Deal on Abbas Proposal

Palestinian political standoff intensifies as Olmert OKs new talks

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Palestinians headed toward a political showdown Sunday after Hamas rejected an ultimatum from moderate President Mahmoud Abbas to sign on to a plan implicitly recognizing Israel.

In a rare dose of good news, some Palestinian public workers began drawing money from their banks, the first time they have been paid in three months, a result of a Western aid cutoff.

Abbas will order a referendum on a plan drawn up by top Palestinian prisoners in an Israeli jail calling for a Palestinian state in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem alongside Israel, a Fatah official said Sunday. Abbas set a Tuesday deadline for Hamas agreement on the plan.

Meanwhile, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert traveled to Egypt Sunday for talks with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, often a mediator in Israeli-Palestinian disputes.

Olmert said he would meet Abbas to discuss resumption of peace negotiations, but he did not give a date for the first Israel-Palestinian summit since February 2005. IBRAHIM BARZAK (AP)

Iran Nuke Claims a 'Sheer Lie'

Supreme leader lashes out at West, warns of possible oil disruptions

TEHRAN, IRAN | Supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei said Sunday that Western accusations Iran seeks nuclear weapons are a "sheer lie," and he declared that attempts to punish Tehran would jeopardize the world's oil supply.

Khamenei, who has the final say on all state matters, made his comments in a speech broadcast live on state radio.

"If you make any mistake (punish or attack Iran), definitely shipment of energy from this region will be seriously jeopardized," Khamenei said, addressing Western nations.

Khamenei said the United States and its allies would be unable to secure oil shipments passing out of the Gulf through the strategic Strait of Hormuz to the Indian Ocean. He did not, however, specify how oil supplies would be disrupted.

Khamenei said Iran was not a threat to any country.

"We have not threatened any neighbor," he said, calling the accusation that Iran is seeking an atomic bomb "a sheer lie." (AP)

NATO Unveils New Afghan Strategy

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | NATO will double the number of soldiers in southern Afghanistan when it takes over security there from U.S. troops next month, seeking to quash the worst rebel violence since the

Lt. Gen. David Richards also said NATO troops will be more "people friendly" in an effort to win the support of the local popu-

Thai Tsunami Survivors Upset Over Miniseries

BANGKOK, THAILAND | HBO and British Broadcasting Corp. call their upcoming miniseries "Tsunami" a compelling story of courage. But for some Thai survivors of the 2004 disaster, the show will do little more than reopen fresh wounds.

"It's too early. ... What about the people who lost their families?" tour guide Sawitree Kulmat told The Nation newspaper.

Filming in Thailand started in May and features a cast that includes Tim Roth and Toni Collette, HBO said in a statement.

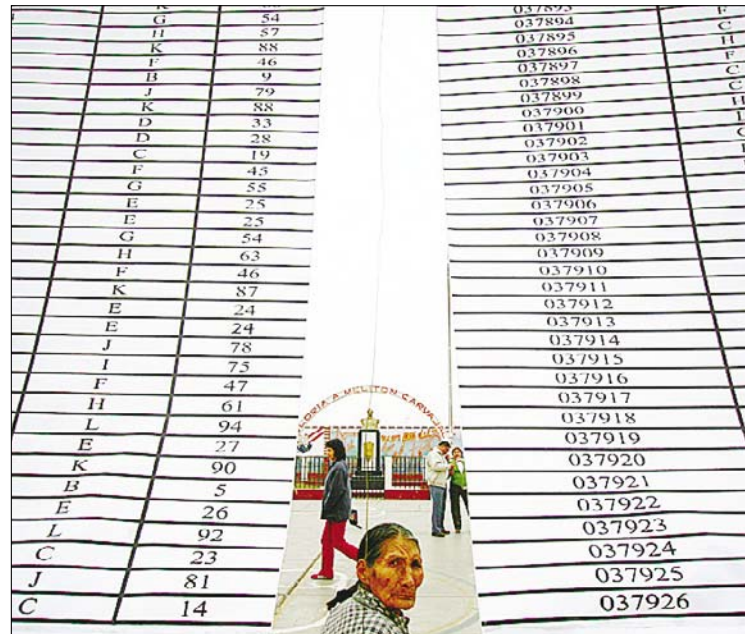

Some survivors said the tsunami miniseries goes too far, noting many residents near Krabi were angered by flyers that advertised for extras, including Thais willing to play corpses. (AP)

Peruvian Voters Weigh Leftist Shift

Initial exit polls give Garcia a slight lead over Humala in race

LIMA, PERU | A polarized Peru voted Sunday in a presidential runoff deciding whether the Andean country tilts into Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez's orbit or returns to office a moderate leftist with a disastrous political legacy who vows to maintain free-market policies.

Voters chose between the charismatic Alan Garcia, whose 1985-1990 presidency left Peru in economic ruin, and Ollanta Humala, a fiery nationalist who pledged to punish a corrupt political establishment and redistribute wealth to the poor Indian and mixed-race majority.

CHOICES: A woman in Lima looks for her voting place during a presidential runoff Sunday between ex-President Alan Garcia and fiery nationalist Ollanta Humala.

Two exit polls issued when polls closed gave Garcia the lead.

He had 54.9 percent to Humala's 45.1 percent in Datum International's survey based on 27,476 interviews. However, the margin of error was 4.9 percentage points, meaning the candidates were in a statistical dead heat.

A win by Humala, a 43-year-old political newcomer, could help Venezuela's Chavez extend his "anti-imperialist" influence in the region after gaining a loyal ally with the December election of Evo Morales as Bolivia's president.

Garcia, 57, adroitly turned the race into a referendum on Chavez, depicting Humala as an aspiring despot who would fall into lock-step with the Venezuelan's populist economics and Cuba-friendly anti-Americanism. MONTE HAYES (AP)

Would-Be White House Intruder Apprehended

Secret Service arrests Washingtonian before he gets over the fence

WASHINGTON | The Secret Service apprehended a man who was trying to jump the fence on the south side of the White House on Sunday.

Secret Service spokesman Tom Mazur identified the man as Roger Witmer, 44, of Washington, who faces charges of unlawful entry and disorderly conduct.

Mazur said members of the uniformed division captured Witmer before he got over the fence. But he threw over plastic bags, and officials shut down traffic on the south side of the White House so they could be examined for explosives.

Bush was out on bike ride in suburban Beltsville, Md., when Witmer was taken into custody. The Secret Service was examining the package when Bush returned. (AP)

1 Escaped Inmate Caught

Second prisoner still on the run after exit through jail window

WASHINGTON | One of two inmates who escaped from the District of Columbia Jail was caught Sunday at a hotel in Alexandria, Va., several miles outside the city, the U.S. Marshals Service said.

Joseph Leaks, 32, was apprehended sometime before 2 a.m.

after escaping Saturday morning, said Kevin Connolly, a spokesman for the Capital Area Regional Fugitive Task Force.

"There's been a lot of good investigative work from the task force," Connolly said. "The chances are good for getting the other (inmate) sooner rather than later."

Leaks and the other escapee, Ricardo Jones, 25, are awaiting trial in connection with a shooting last July in the District.

Jones was charged with first-degree murder and Leaks was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and obstruction of justice; both also face weapons charges.

The inmates left the jail by entering an administrative office and breaking a window just before 10:30 a.m. Saturday, said Devon Brown, director of the D.C. Department of Corrections. The jail was put on lockdown after the escape. (AP)

Fairfax Murders Prompt Building Security Review

FAIRFAX, VA. | The fatal shootings of two police officers outside the Sully District station in Chantilly has led to a security review of all police, fire and sheriff's buildings in Fairfax County.

The county formed the Public Safety Facilities Security Assessment Committee in the days after Detective Vicky O. Armel and Officer Michael E. Garbarino were fatally wounded May 8 when a troubled teen drove a stolen minivan unimpeded into the back parking lot of the Sully station. (AP)

WIE ARE THE CHAMPIONSHIPS: Michelle Wie will attempt to qualify today for the U.S. Open, which would make her the first female to compete in any major championship. Wie is competing against 153 players, including greats such as Mark O'Meara, for 18 spots.

Soriano's Slam Finishes Off Sweep

Left fielder hits 2 HRs, Armas again strong in 8-4 win in Milwaukee

NATIONALS | Alfonso Soriano hit a grand slam and a solo homer to lead the Washington Nationals over the Milwaukee Brewers 8-4 Sunday, completing a three-game sweep.

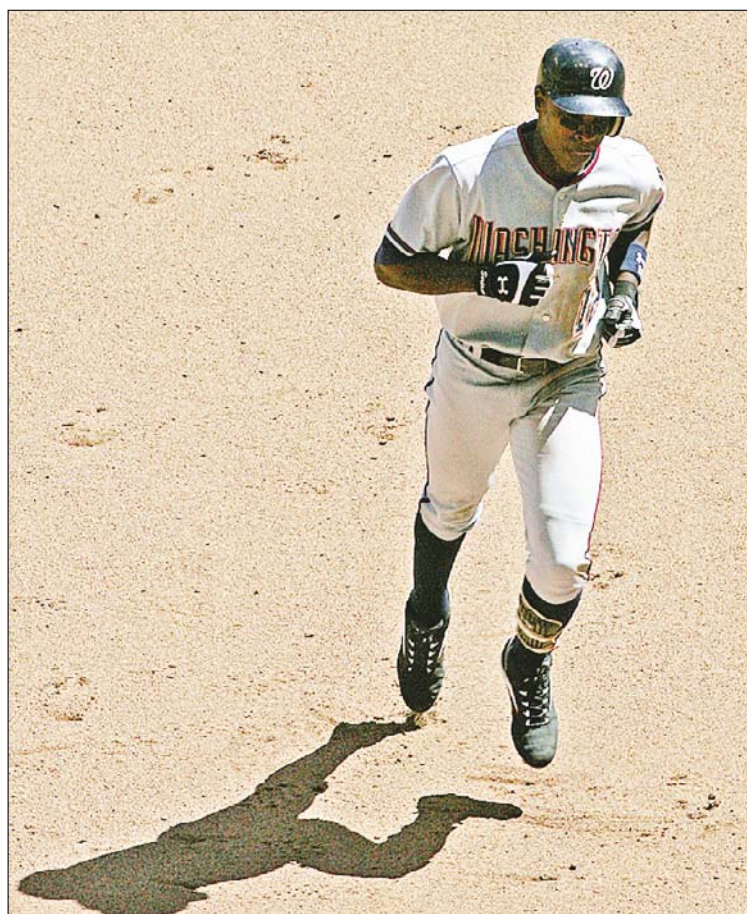

Soriano went 3-for-4 to overcome a pair of bad plays. He made a baserunning error in the first and grounded into a double play with the bases loaded in the fourth.

All of that was forgotten when he hit his third career grand slam in the sixth inning.

After an intentional walk to Mike Vento put two on with two outs, Jorge De La Rosa (2-2) walked Nationals pitcher Tony Armas Jr. to load the bases.

De La Rosa was pulled for reliever Joe Winkelsas, and Soriano hit a 2-2 pitch into the Brewers' bullpen to give the Nationals a 6-0 lead.

That was more than enough for Armas (6-3), who allowed one unearned run and two hits in six innings. He retired the first nine Brewers — three on strikeouts — and 13 of the first 14 to help send Milwaukee to its eighth straight loss.

Alfonso Soriano rounds the bases after hitting a grand slam in the sixth inning of Sunday's 8-4 win over the Brewers. The slam was his second home run of the day.

During the streak, the Brewers have been outscored 64-21.

Washington could have scored even more against the hapless Brewers.

The Nationals had three hits in the first inning, but failed to score after Soriano got picked off trying to steal third and Royce Clayton stopped at third after Jose Vidro's double.

Soriano, now hitting .312 with 21 homers and 43 RBIs, quickly made amends in his next at-bat in the third, hitting a home run to deep center field to give Washington a 1-0 lead.

Then came the messy fourth inning for Milwaukee, the worst fielding team in baseball.

First, Fielder and Jenkins collided on a foul pop by Brendan Harris that neither reached, and while Jenkins played defense the rest of the inning, he didn't bat in the fourth because of a mild concussion. Brewers manager Ned Yost was ejected in the sixth for arguing balls and strikes. COLIN FLY (AP)

Pettersson Wins by 2 at Memorial, Qualifies for Open

Handy with the wedge and hot with the putter, Carl Pettersson picked up a prestigious trophy, a salute from Jack Nicklaus and a welcome break from U.S. Open qualifying by winning the Memorial on Sunday. Orioles' Lopez Picks Up Another Win

Starter wins 3rd in a row to help Baltimore avoid Yankees' broom

ORIOLES | The Lopez & Lopez tandem staged another successful performance, this time at the expense of the New York Yankees.

Javy Lopez hit two of Baltimore's four home runs, Rodrigo Lopez won his third straight start, and the Orioles won 11-4 Sunday to avert a three-game sweep.

Rodrigo Lopez had gone winless in nine straight starts before Orioles manager Sam Perlozzo put Javy Lopez, a backup catcher, behind the plate to catch the right-hander on May 25 in Seattle.

Lopez & Lopez have been a team for three starts now, and Rodrigo Lopez is 3-0 during that time. He blanked the Yankees through six innings before being chased in the seventh, but by that time the Orioles had built a huge lead.

On Sunday, Javy Lopez did more than just call the right pitches. He led off the second inning with a homer and hit a three-run drive in the fifth to make it 10-0. It was his 22nd career multihomer game, the first since 2004.

"A day like this is always good to have. It kind of got my confidence back where I want it," said Lopez, who entered with three homers in 37 games. "At the same time, catching Rodrigo in another winner makes me feel even better."

Lopez took credit for making Rodrigo Lopez pick up the pace, but said the pitcher has done most of the work in turning around his dismal start.

"Rodrigo has been consistent the last three starts hitting the corners and keeping the ball down," he said.

The loss dropped New York a half-game behind first-place Boston in the AL East. (AP)

Pujols Goes on DL, Could Miss Up to 6 Weeks

BASEBALL | This is a much larger challenge for the St. Louis Cardinals: Albert Pujols will be out indefinitely with a strained muscle on his right side.

Pujols, last year's NL MVP and this season's major league leader in home runs and RBIs, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Sunday.

"Life would be easier with Albert," closer Jason Isringhausen said. "But we've played without our star players before. We'll have to weather the storm."

Now the team is awaiting results of an exam by team physician Dr. George Paletta, who said Saturday Pujols could be out as long as six weeks. Trainer Barry Weinberg was optimistic that a few weeks would be enough for Pujols. (AP)

CAVING CAVS: The top-seeded Virginia baseball team's run at a national title ended Sunday with a bang — a lot of bangs — from the Evansville squad. Evansville had twice as many hits as the heavily-favored Cavaliers and beat Virginia 15-4.

Hurricanes' Unsung Hero

Back in the Stanley Cup finals, Stillman is still an underrated star

NHL PLAYOFFS | Cory Stillman has that right-place, right-time knack.

Two years ago, after helping the Lightning win the Stanley Cup, the 11-year veteran forward hoped to stay with Tampa Bay.

Fortunately for him and the Carolina Hurricanes, that didn't work out.

When the Lightning let Stillman walk away as a free agent, the Hurricanes made him part of their plan to retool the roster for the new-look NHL.

Stillman rewarded them by finishing the regular season tied for second on the team in scoring. He was even better in the playoffs, helping Carolina reach the Stanley Cup finals for the second time.

His biggest challenge? Getting enough credit for that production.

Cory Stillman's 19 points is second in the playoffs heading into tonight's Game 1.

"Not only is he underrated through the league, even on our team, he never gets enough recognition for what he does," Carolina coach Peter Laviolette said.

Stillman, who signed a three-year contract with Carolina in August, is tied for second in the playoffs with 19 points heading into Game 1 of the Stanley Cup finals against Edmonton on Monday.

For Dallas, Finals Are Unfamiliar Spot

NBA PLAYOFFS | They were once the model franchise. Then they were the Mav-wrecks.

Now they're headed to the NBA finals for the first time.

"When I first got to Dallas, nobody really knew us," Dirk Nowitzki said. "Nobody was paying attention to the Mavericks really."

In the postgame exuberance, there were chants of "M-V-P" for Nowitzki, tears in the eyes of owner Mark Cuban and lumps in the throat of former stars like Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman, plus assistant GM Keith Grant, one of the club's first employees.

Jody Duran, of McKinney, Texas, picks through Dallas championship clothing.

The Mavericks own home-court advantage, meaning the first two games — and Games 6 and 7, if necessary — will be in Dallas. Miami is also a first-time finalist. (AP)

Research Study Trying to Improve Depressive Symptoms Quickly

Several medications are effective for treating depression; however, they take weeks or months to achieve their full effects. NIMH is studying whether a drug can cause a rapid antidepressant effect in patients with bipolar or unipolar depression. The study also tries to see if it can sustain the results with another medication in certain patients. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-65 with depression (unipolar or bipolar) who are:

- Free of other serious medical conditions
- Willing to participate in a minimum of a 12-day inpatient stay

Research medications provided free of charge.
Compensation and transportation reimbursement is provided.

Sharapova's Open Ends With Upset

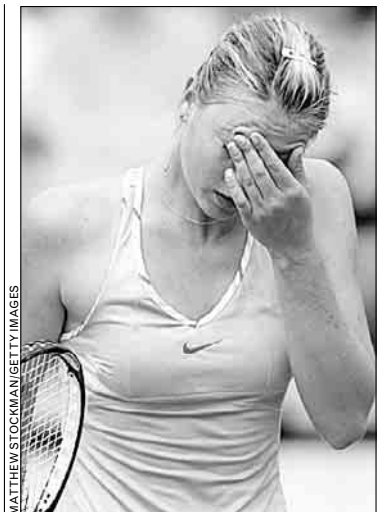

Blake loses, leaving
Venus Williams
as the only American

TENNIS | Maria Sharapova's collapse ranked as a shocker. Amelie Mauresmo's meltdown seemed all too familiar.

With an improbable comeback against Sharapova, Dinara Safina made big brother Marat Safin proud. Safina erased a 5-1 deficit in the final set, won 18 of the last 21 points and beat Sharapova 7-5, 2-6, 7-5 on Sunday at the French Open.

Mauresmo, a perennial flop in front of her countrymen at Roland Garros, fizzled again on center court, losing to 17-year-old Nicole Pietrangeli, 6-7 (5), 6-1, 6-2.

Vaidisova, seeded 16th, next faces No. 11 Venus Williams, who advanced to the quarterfinals when she won the final four games to beat No. 7 Patty Schnyder 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. Williams is the last American man or woman in the tournament because No. 8 James Blake lost to No. 25 Gael Monfils 6-2, 6-7 (2), 7-6 (1), 5-7, 6-4. The third-round match had been suspended after two sets

Saturday because of darkness.

“Lone flag waving gently in the wind,” said Williams, who committed 19 unforced errors in the first set, then totaled 16 in the last two. The reigning Wimbledon champion is making her 10th try at a French Open title.

Personal Tech

DRIVING HARD: A worker at hard-drive supplier Seagate Technology in Milpitas, Calif., pulls disks for a quality-control check.

Memory Game

The race for smaller, more powerful hard drives is in full gear

HARDWARE | Bill Healy held the future in his pocket.

The senior vice president of Hitachi Global Storage Technologies Inc. whipped out a tiny hard drive about the size of a Wheat Thin. The drive's label claimed a capacity of 1,000 gigabytes — more than 100 times greater than today's models that can hold 8,000 photos or 2,000 songs.

It wasn't real. But at the rate storage technology is moving, it's only a matter of time before Healy's mock 1-terabyte drive becomes a reality.

With pioneering products like

TiVo Inc.'s digital video recorders and Apple Computer Inc.'s iPod music players, the unsung storage components of hard disk drives and flash memory are taking on more visible roles. These are the keepers of precious personal cargo — from photos to music collections.

The opportunity hasn't been lost on storage purveyors.

Top suppliers — like Seagate, Western Digital Inc. and Hitachi for hard drives, and Samsung Electronics Co. and Toshiba Corp. for both flash memory and hard drives — are consistently pushing the technological envelope to feed device makers with ever beefier and more reliable technology.

The capacities of hard drives, which use spinning magnetized disks, have been doubling nearly each year. After decades of cramming more and more bits of data closer together, the industry is now switching to so-called perpendicular recording. By flipping the bits of information to stand vertically rather than horizontally, hard drive capacities are again on track to keep expanding.

As a result, consumers are closer than they've ever been to seeing a terabyte of storage in the 3.5-inch hard disk drives found in mainstream home computers.

"This is the vision of the future," Healy said, holding the mock 1-inch, 1-terabyte hard drive. It might take 20 years to get there, he said, "but it won't cost you anymore than it would today." MAY WONG (AP)

'SugarMama' Phones It In

CELL PHONES | That next cell-phone call from your teenager might be brought to you courtesy of Diet Mountain Dew.

Virgin Mobile USA is launching a service June 14 letting customers of the company's prepaid plans earn airtime minutes for watching or reading ads.

Customers will be able to sign up for the service, "SugarMama," at Virgin Mobile's Web site, where they can watch 30-second video ads. Afterward, they'll be asked some questions about the ads. Correct answers yield one minute of airtime for every ad.

Virgin Mobile charges 25 cents per minute under its Minute2Minute plan, meaning a customer who watches the maximum of 75 ads per month could earn $18.75 in airtime for less than an hour's work. (AP)

'X-ED OUT OF THE PICTURE: Jennifer Aniston and Vince Vaughn's "The Break-Up" pulled an upset over the mutant world of the "X-Men" by taking in $38.1 million to become the top box-office draw this weekend. "X-Men 3" slipped to second with $34.35 million.

Animation's Rolls Royce

Disney, Pixar head back to the computer screen to create 'Cars'

FILM | They've given us toys, bugs, monsters and a superhero family. Now, Disney and Pixar are riding into movie theaters with a computer-animated feature called "Cars."

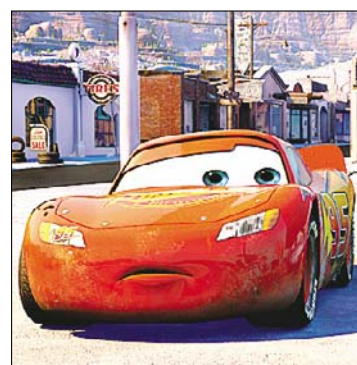

The adventure comedy, voiced by a cast of celebrities and directed by John Lasseter ("Toy Story," "A Bug's Life"), is set in a fantasy world where cars rule and humans don't exist.

Owen Wilson voices Lightning McQueen, a hotshot rookie racecar. On his way to a big race in California, Lightning lands in the sleepy Route 66 town of Radiator Springs where he meets a host of colorful locals who teach him a thing or two about stopping to smell the roses.

Paul Newman provides the voice of Doc Hudson, a 1951 Hudson Hornet, who serves as the town's mechanic and judge. Bonnie Hunt supplies the voice of a snazzy Porsche 911. Cheech Marin delivers some sass as a low-rider named Ramone, and Tony Shalhoub puts on his best hyper-Italian accent as a 1959 Fiat 500 named Luigi.

Lasseter, returning to the director's chair for the first time since 1999's "Toy Story 2," says he conceived the idea for "Cars" while on a road trip with his wife and children several years ago. His love for all things automotive goes back even further.

"You've seen a lot of animated cars throughout the history of animation, but I thought we could really bring them alive — with the chrome bumpers, metal flake paint, the rubber tires, the glass — in a way that no one has seen it before," he said. ANGELA DAWSON (VNU ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Simon Says 'Surprise'

Singer strikes wrong note while teaming with Eno on album

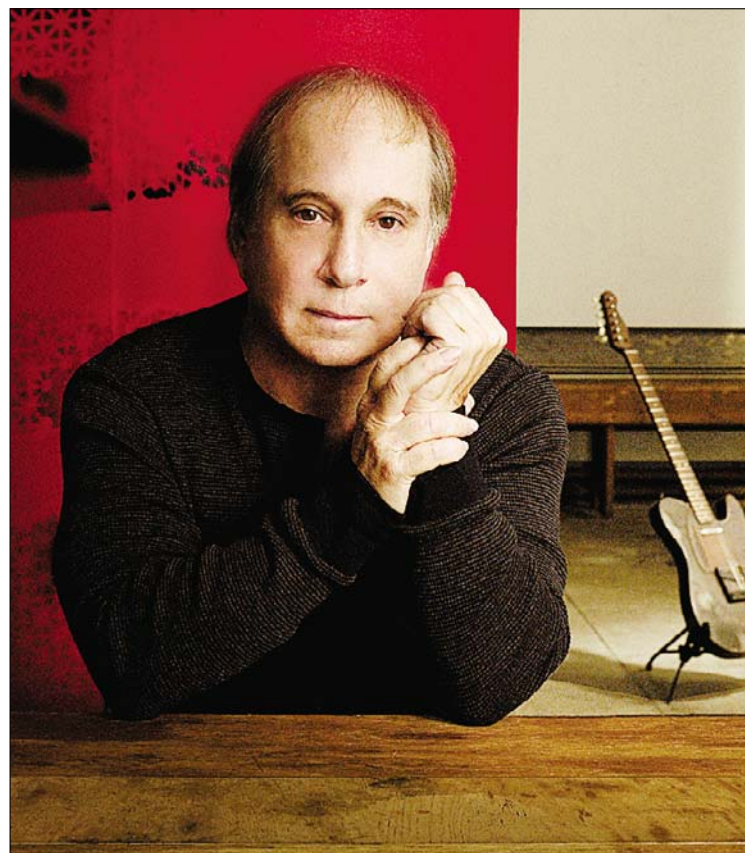

MUSIC | It's a long way from "Graceland" to spaceland, but in the latest of his ongoing series of direction-changing collaborations, downbeat New Yorker Paul Simon casts his lot with the English electro-ethno-ambient visionary Brian Eno.

The idea of Simon's erudite folk-pop meeting Eno's elegance and experimentation holds a lot of promise, but the connection between the two (who produced together) is faulty on "Surprise" (Warner Bros.), Simon's first album in six years.

There are some big, semi-rock electronic arrangements, but most of the songs make more subtle use of Eno's studio signatures, incorporating touches such as drum-and-bass-style shuffle into Simon's familiar African- and Caribbean-flavored grooves, and lapping atmospherics into his meandering folk reveries.

That's really the problem. Instead of generating a new kind of song, the teaming simply dresses typical latter-day Simon material in different duds. These settings sound good, but they don't redefine or extend Simon's aesthetic, and they lack the spirit of fun that Eno usually finds in whatever he does.

For Simon, it's midlife blues six years on, with long looks back at his own life — a "catalog of regrets" — and the life of the planet. There's a jokey number about exercising and coloring his hair, sweet evocations of family love and laments on the state of the world.

His reliable craftsmanship remains in force, but the urgency that has generated his indelible imagery and melodies is missing. He finds it for a moment on "Wartime Prayers," a topical meditation on human endurance and spiritual solace. Eno's most restrained presence enhances a more familiar Simon environment — a stately hymn with an ambient backdrop and some fuzzy blasts.

Ross Hustles to the Top

MC lands big deal after rising up the charts with hit single

MUSIC | When most people think of South Beach, it's supermodels and fashionistas and pastel-colored art deco buildings. But Rick Ross' Miami is a lot more "Scarface" than art deco.

Take Ross' breakout hit, "Hustlin'" — it's about slingin' coke. With Billboard's Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Songs chart largely populated with catchy, but ultimately lightweight fare, "Hustlin'" hits the bull's-eye of hip-hop's infatuation with making something out of nothing.

In a way, that's the story of Ross himself: The MC had rhymed and ghostwritten for 10 years, but got his break when "Hustlin'" caught on in Miami — and caught the ear of Def Jam A&R man Shakir Stewart. "What made Rick Ross stand out was that he's a real lyrical guy," Stewart said. "It's not just the beat and a one-liner."

In January 2006, Def Jam signed Ross to a four-album deal that the MC says is worth $10 million. "When I finished 'Hustlin', I knew it was gonna be a hit," the linebacker-sized Ross said. "I took it to radio, and it kept growing." HILLARY CROSLY (BILLBOARD)

LOOK MA, NO CAREER: Tom Green is getting another late-night talk show — this time online. Nearly three years after MTV axed his show, ManiaTV.com will host a weekly call-in show with the comedian on June 15, live from his living room in the Hollywood Hills.

Awards That Pop

MTV proves that honoring Hollywood can be lots of fun

AWARDS | Jessica Alba played starring roles in “King Kong,” “Mission Impossible: III” and “The Da Vinci Code.”

At least she did on Saturday, when she parodied the three blockbusters as the host of the 2006 MTV Movie Awards, known for taking a lighthearted look at the industry it honors.

This is the awards show where a teen-is-king attitude reigns, where stars step out in jeans and use the f-word in acceptance speeches.

"It's not even like an awards show," said actor Zach Braff. "It feels like a birthday party."

The unconventional ceremony, held on a soundstage at Sony Studios, celebrates the fun of films with prizes recognizing the best on-screen hero, villain, kiss and fight, as well as sexy, funny and frightened performances.

Last summer's "Wedding Crashers" was the night's big winner, collecting three trophies, including the coveted Golden Popcorn for best movie.

Alba took home her own Golden Popcorn trophy for her sexy striptease performance in “Sin City.”

The show is scheduled to air at 8:30 p.m. June 8 on MTV.

Numbers

Will Tuesday be the end of the world, Or just another day?

Is Tuesday's date — 6-6-6 — merely a curious number or could it mean our number is up?

There is a devilishly odd nexus of theology, mathematics and commercialism on the sixth day of the sixth month of the sixth year. OK, it is just the sixth year of this millennium, but insisting on calling it 2006 takes the devil-may-care fun out of calendar-gazing.

Something about the number 666 brings out the worry, the hope and even the humor in people, said the Rev. Felix Just, a professor of theology at the University of San Francisco. A Jesuit priest, Just has taught both apocalyptic theory and mathematics and maintains a "666-Numbers of the Beast" Web site that contains history, theology, math and precisely 66 one-line jokes about 666.

You can even make sport of it, betting online whether the apocalypse will happen on that date. The good news is that one online oddsmaker has made the world a 100,000-to-1 favorite to survive Tuesday — something that Just said is supported by theology.

"The Omen," about a child Antichrist, will be released on Tuesday, which is 6/6/06.

"Many people avoid the number; they're afraid of it and there's absolutely no reason to be afraid of it," Just said. "It is not a prediction of future events. It is not supposed to be taken as a timetable for when the world is going to end."

It all started with Revelation 13:18 in the Bible: "This calls for wisdom: let him who has understanding reckon the number of the beast, for it is a human number, its number is six hundred and sixty-six." The beast is also known as the Antichrist, according to some apocalyptic theories.

Many scholars, such as Just,

Many people avoid the number; they're afraid of it and there's absolutely no reason to be afraid of it."

THE REV. FELIX JUST
UNIVERSITY OF SAN FRANCISCO

say that the Book of Revelation is not prophesying a specific end of times but "is about the overall cosmic struggle of good versus evil,"

Just said.

"People need to lighten up about this," said Brian C. Jones, a religion professor at Wartburg College in Iowa. He added that it is hard to take a Tuesday seriously as a day of reckoning. "Monday, we always hate Mondays. Wednesday is hump day. Friday sometimes has the 13th attached to it. But Tuesdays and Thursdays, they don't ring for me as days when bad things happen or good things happen. They're filler days."

But it is a day to cash in on the number associated with the apocalypse. Tuesday will mark the debut for a remake of the classic 1970s horror film "The Omen," the publication of Tim LaHaye's new "Left Behind" book, and a polemic by conservative commentator Ann Coulter called "Godless: The Church of Liberalism."

And for truly cashing in, there's the nonsectarian online sports book, BetUS.com, which gives Earth a better than sporting chance. At 100,000-to-1 odds, if you bet the maximum $500 that the world will survive and it does, you win half a penny. If you bet $100 that the apocalypse happens and it does, you can earn a cool $10 million but you might have a devil of a time collecting it.

Still scared? Jack Horkheimer of the Miami Space Transit Planetarium has a piece of advice: "If it really spooks you, you can stand on your head and it'll be 999." SETH BORENSTEIN (AP)

Charleston Tea Party

Travel

Visitors can now see where their daily cuppa comes from

Green-yellow tea plants reach into the distance at the Charleston Tea Plantation as a green harvester slowly makes its way down one row, gently cutting the youngest leaves from atop the bushes to make them into American Classic tea.

The only commercial tea plantation in North America is again in production and on May 11, began officially welcoming visitors again to see how tea is processed.

“What we have here is a gem,” said William Hall, a third-generation English-trained tea taster and partner in the plantation.

“I would hope that over time this will become a destination for a lot of tea drinkers and that it will bring a considerable number of people into Charleston,” added David Bigelow, the co-chairman of the board of R.C. Bigelow Inc., the Connecticut tea company that purchased the plantation at auction in 2003.

William Hall explains to a group of reporters how tea is harvested and made at North America's only working tea plantation.

Visitors are now able to take a tour though a spacious new production building where large-screen monitors explain how tea is processed from green leaves to finished product. As many as 50,000 visitors are expected this year, Bigelow said.

Hall has been with the plantation, which is about 20 miles west of Charleston, since 1987 and helped develop the American Classic brand after buying the plantation with a partner from Lipton, which operated the 127-acre property as an experimental station.

At one point, American Classic was sold in more than 1,000 retail outlets. But financial problems caused the plantation to suspend operations for about a year and a half.

Bigelow then purchased the property and has spent three years restructuring the plantation into both an operating plantation and a visitor attraction.

“We have the resources in this new facility to really make tea important in America,” Hall said. “It would be a shame to see this plowed under and turned into condos.”

The plantation now also has a gift shop selling everything from videos on how tea is made to tea cups and tea pots. The company would also like to add a restaurant at the plantation, Bigelow said.

“We didn’t buy it originally for tourism. We did buy it just to save it; we truly did. We just couldn’t let the only tea plantation in America die,” said Lori Bigelow, Bigelow’s daughter and the company’s co-president. “It was for the country and it was for the tea industry.” Tourism, she said, was a secondary goal.

“It just helps the business, and it doesn’t affect our factory work at all,” she said.

Tea at the Charleston plantation is harvested from late April through October, with the harvester gathering in a day what it would take 500 laborers to do by hand.

When tea is not being processed, visitors will still be able to walk through the production facility, see the equipment and watch the monitors to see how tea is made.

“The income that will come in from tourism will help to stabilize the finances here,” David Bigelow said. “Making tea alone, just selling tea is not going to do it. So, the tourists are going to have to help us in bringing income in.”

FASHION'S NEXT CRAZE? Thakoon Panichgul with his collection, which combines classic American sportswear with urban touches and metallic, Thai-inspired details.

Three designers get nods from the 'Oscars of fashion'

The fashion business is largely about buzz. Sure, talent matters and so do solid retail numbers, but nothing sparks a career like word of mouth.

Thakoon, Doo-ri and Rodarte are the names on the lips of industry insiders these days: They've been nominated for the emerging talent award at the Council of Fashion Designers of America awards, essentially the Oscars of the fashion world.

No matter who wins the Swarovski Perry Ellis prize, simply having the attention of the press, retailers, stylists and top-tier designers who select the nominees could help push the up-and-comers toward style stardom.

Thakoon Panichgul is realizing that his childhood — half spent in northern Thailand and half spent just outside Omaha, Neb. — influences his creative process.

He sees the formality and modesty that's inherent in Thai culture in his clothes, and he has an affinity for gold and metallics. "Those are very Thai, too," he said. He also notes the elements of classic American sportswear in his otherwise more urban designs.

Either way, the goal is to offer pieces with "impact," Panichgul says. One of his favorite techniques is to play with the back of an outfit, noting his favorite piece from the current collection is a dress with an open back and black-and-white bows. "It's unexpected. I think clothes can be playful and sophisticated."

Doo-ri Chung agrees with the CFDA that her business is "emerging." As a designer, though, Chung feels after more than 10 years in the business, she's hit her stride.

After attending Parsons School of Design, Chung worked for the late Geoffrey Beene. She learned about jersey from Beene, considered the master of the fabric, but instead of keeping it close to the body like he did, Chung likes to see it flow. "Stiff tailoring isn't my thing. ... I like movement. I think women are more beautiful in softer, feminine clothes. I think it takes a strong woman to wear something soft and loose."

Sisters Laura and Kate Mulleavy didn't follow the typical path of aspiring designers. When they started their company, Rodarte, they didn't have a plan, Mulleavy said, but they did have a vision. "We didn't have an internship or a class on production — things you need to learn about — but we knew we wanted to do it so we had to make it happen."

For fall 2005, Rodarte produced 10 pieces, but Mulleavy says they didn't know how to get anyone to see the seven dresses and three coats. "We're in Pasadena — and completely removed from fashion. We had never even been to New York City," Mulleavy says. "We knew all the names but not the people."

They brought that collection to New York without having a single appointment booked, but Kate Mulleavy had sent out clever lookbooks made of paper dolls to top editors. "We sat in a room waiting for the phone to ring. Finally,

JERSEY GIRL: Designer Doo-ri Chung, nominated for a CFDA award, next to a ruffled trench coat from her collection.

Women's Wear Daily called us in and three days later we were on the cover." Four stores bought pieces from that collection.

By spring '06, the collection grew to 16 looks, building on the sophisticated look that's becoming the Rodarte trademark. But the size of the line will always be limited by the complicated cascades of fabrics and its atelier-only production. "Start to finish, each piece is made one at a time. We pin each one on a form. Most pieces take forever to make, but, in the end, they're really beautiful and special," said Kate Mulleavy. SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

Are We in 'Tagtown'?

HELLO, I'M... | Are you wearing tagged identification right now? There's a good chance you are, since apparently Washington is known as "TAGTOWN," according to a Reuters article that explored the many facets of tagged identification.

Anthropologist Edward Smith said wearing nametags is part of District culture. "People wear these things as if they were bars on their uniform," Smith told Reuters. "I think that some people, particularly young people, want that extra patina of prestige. In Washington, you are much more recognized as a position than as a personality."

We've heard of Swamp City, we've heard of the nation's capital, heck, we've even heard taglines like

EATERIES | There was a bit of a stir online last week when Esquire named the TUNE INN on CAPITOL HILL one of the best bars in America. The problem: Some people had never heard of it.

But the bar, a little more than 50 years old, is an off-the-radar type of place where mostly locals tend to go. And that's the way some people like it. Says commenter and Tune Inn fan Andrea Courtois: "The Tune Inn is a Capitol Hill establishment. You can get good burgers and enjoy a beer without having to chat with some snobby staffer. It's an oasis in an area full of pretentious politicians. Even those who do come in know that the politics stop at the front door. Esquire got it right."

Commenter Katie O'Brien was more measured: "I wouldn't call it 'one of the best bars in America,' particularly when it's more or less a glorified American Legion (another favorite to escape the same old crowds on 3rd and D St. SE), but it certainly is a key element in anyone's evening of debauchery in Capitol Hill."

Lisa de Moraes

Washington Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday to discuss Katie Couric's farewell, Taylor Hicks and "Joey." | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

I got quite a chuckle when reading your "We Watch So You Don't Have To" about Katie's "Today" farewell. I couldn't believe that the first half hour of Wednesday's show wasn't a summary of the major news of the morning. Katie leaving is big and all, but there's a war going on. Thirty minutes of news is too much to ask for? What do you think would have happened if there was "breaking news" during the three-hour Katiefest?

Nothing different. We would have had three hours of Katiepalooza, after which NBC would have issued a statement to Outraged Reporters Who Cover Television saying that The Networks of NBC/Universal had in fact covered the major breaking news event like responsible broadcasters — on MSNBC.

RE: Taylor Hicks. I'm still not buying this guy is 29, he looks older than Gene Weingarten! Can we cut him in half and count his rings?

Nobody looks older than Gene Weingarten. But I'm liking the cutting Hicks in half and counting his rings idea. Maybe we could make that the pilot for the show I'm still hoping to talk some network into: "Celebrity Autopsy."

I should be shot for asking this but ... is NBC going to burn off the remaining episodes of "Joey" (if there are any)?

I suspect you'll see it offered up in one of those mobile-ish deals NBC is brokering these days. You know, see "Lost Joey Episodes on iPod" or something like that. Maybe they'll burn it off on that new Sleuth channel they just announced; somehow they'll have to repackage it as a mystery though. Maybe as in "What a mystery that anybody at NBC thought this show was a good idea."

Iraq Accountability Needed

IN THE JUNE 2 EXPRESS article, "Iraqis Set to Probe Haditha," it says the U.S. military will undergo special training in ethics in the wake of allegations that Marines killed unarmed civilians.

This is another case of Bush and Rumsfeld trying to close the barn door after all the animals have escaped. And, when the allegations surfaced, they, as usual, denied or failed to acknowledge the barn existed. With no accountability at the top, major wrongs such as these will continue to happen.

WEDDINGS

Maybe She'll Make Him Grow His Hair Out Again

The youngest member of pop group Hanson, drummer ZAC HANSON, 20, was to marry Kate Tucker, 22, his girlfriend of five years, this weekend in Atlanta. The group's publicist told the Associated Press in an e-mail that "the couple is planning an intimate ceremony with close family and friends."

Hanson and brothers Issac, now 25, and Taylor, now 23, are best known for their 1997 single, "MMMBop"; they are currently working on a followup to "Underneath," their 2004 release. According to E! Online, Zac isn't the only brother to marry young: Taylor wed in 2002, when he was 18. He and wife Natalie have two children: Jordan Ezra, 3, and Penelope Anne, 1. (EXPRESS)
